A Message From Our President

JUAN DE LA CRUZ
Adventist Health White Memorial Charitable Foundation

At Adventist Health White Memorial, our dedication to East Los Angeles, Boyle Heights and Montebello goes beyond healthcare — it’s about fostering a thriving community. Our community first approach shapes every strategic move we make, looking holistically at what it means to live a healthy life.

My roots in Boyle Heights have given me a personal understanding of our community’s structural challenges. Food insecurity, scarce green spaces and language and cultural barriers are just as critical to health as diet and exercise. That’s why we focus on supporting initiatives and programs covering all these areas at the Adventist Health White Memorial Charitable Foundation.

With your support, 2023 marked a year of significant progress in creating a more equitable environment for our community. Our 2023 Impact Report narrates this journey, highlighting how we’ve combated food scarcity, championed youth development and cultivated a healthcare workforce as diverse as the community we serve. We raised over $1 million to support the Cecilia Gonzalez De La Hoya Cancer Center through events like the Gala and Golf Classic. On Sept. 7, the former Beverly Hospital site and its adjacent medical office building began operating as Adventist Health White Memorial Montebello, ensuring that the community will continue to receive care.

Yet, the heart of our mission is reflected in the personal stories of real people. One story that resonated with me was that of Yanira Hurtado, a high school friend I reconnected with at an event honoring cancer survivors. There, I learned of her triumphant battle with cancer and the care she received at Adventist Health White Memorial. Her inspiring story of survival is a testament to the significant impact your support has made possible.

As you explore this report, try to see the echoes of your generosity within the stories. I sincerely thank you for embracing our mission and becoming a cherished part of our family at Adventist Health White Memorial.

Warm regards,

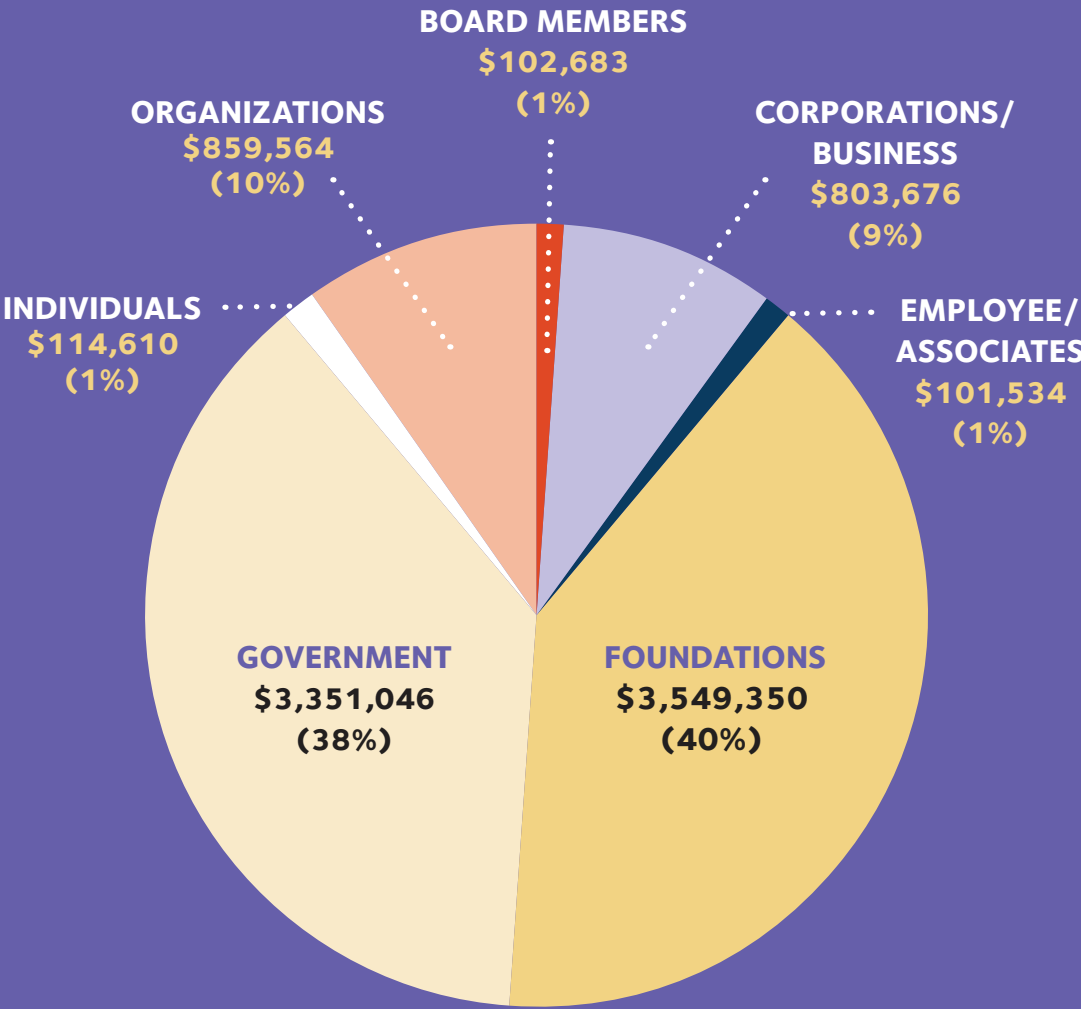

Juan De La Cruz

A Message from Our Board Chair

RUBEN MACIEL
Adventist Health White Memorial Charitable Foundation

On behalf of the Adventist Health White Memorial Charitable Foundation board of directors, I extend our heartfelt gratitude for your support in 2023. Your generosity has enabled us to create inspiring stories of impact, which we are eager to share with you. We believe these narratives will move and inspire you, illustrating the powerful difference your contributions make.

Our community helped us raise nearly $9 million to strengthen the critical services at Adventist Health White Memorial that save lives and give hope. We are incredibly proud that we received over $1 million in charitable gifts to aid in expanding compassionate cancer care services provided by the Cecilia Gonzalez De La Hoya Cancer Center. This achievement is a true testament to our community’s unity and will go a long way to assisting our communities’ most vulnerable patients.

While we celebrate our shared successes of 2023, we also look to the future with optimism. The philanthropic culture you have helped us cultivate will no doubt continue to grow, furthering the health and well-being of our loved ones in East LA, Boyle Heights and Montebello.

We are deeply grateful for your partnership and thank you again for your unwavering support.

With heartfelt gratitude,

Fighting Food Insecurity and Improving Community Well-Being

Adventist Health White Memorial is at the forefront of addressing food insecurity in the communities of East Los Angeles, Boyle Heights and Montebello, where the need is profound and persistent. According to a study published by the USC Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences’ Public Exchange, 37% of low-income residents in Los Angeles experienced food insecurity in 2022, making our commitment to this cause is more crucial than ever (USC Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences’ Public Exchange, February 2023).

Central to our efforts is the Community Resource Center (CRC), home to The Prema Pantry and Fresh Produce Program. These programs supply nonperishable foods and daily necessities such as diapers, blankets and toiletry kits to support people in their health journey.

Understanding that combating food insecurity is a collaborative effort, in 2023 we welcomed the generous support of SoCalGas, which contributed a $40,000 grant from its Fueling

Our Communities initiative, and Walmart, which donated $25,000 to bolster the CRC’s programs.

This financial support translates into tangible enhancements:

- Enhancing our patient safety net, we distributed over 1,830 meals and fresh farmers market vouchers to combat food insecurity.
- The CRC’s resources expanded to support over 800 individuals with financial stability and health insurance support.

These partnerships aid in delivering immediate relief and reinforce Adventist Health White Memorial’s leading role in ensuring community health and well-being through sustained nutritional support.

Community Resource Center

The CRC promotes community health and well-being through a variety of services offered to those in the community. In 2023, the CRC served the needs of more than 9,180 community members with health, exercise and wellness workshops, activities and events.

Revolutionizing Care for the Unhoused

Recognizing the intricate challenges faced by unhoused individuals — frequent emergency department visits, compounded by the volatility of homelessness and additional behavioral health and substance use issues — we introduced the Homeless Health Navigation Project (HHNP) in November 2020. With the support of UniHealth Foundation and Good Hope Medical Foundation, the HHNP provides compassionate, personalized care to address the root causes of recurrent hospitalization and foster stability in our patients' lives.

At the heart of the HHNP are the navigators, whose personal engagement with patients lays a groundwork of trust. Sandra Arzola, Adventist Health White Memorial's Homeless Health Navigator, offers a tailored 90-day post-discharge program that encompasses medical follow-ups, housing needs and financial stability to ensure continuity of care and a bridge to essential resources. Her help ensures that care doesn't end at discharge but starts a new chapter of supported improved health.

The HHNP reflects our understanding of the complex needs of our unhoused patients. It's also a conscious step towards a healthcare model prioritizing sustained, holistic support to one of the most vulnerable populations.

Sandra Arzola, Homeless Health Navigator, with Timothy Walker standing in the healing garden at Adventist Health White Memorial.

“GO TO WHITE MEMORIAL. THEY CAN HELP YOU.”

Timothy Walker, once a Beverly Hills lawyer, found himself living on Skid Row, struggling with addiction and suicidal thoughts. Seeking help, he went to a local hospital but was refused care because he was deemed too aggressive. A responding sheriff's deputy, recognizing his plight, advised, "Go to White Memorial. They can help you."

Walker was lovingly admitted here and introduced to Homeless Health Navigator Sandra Arzola. "Her kindness created a feeling of hope," Walker recalled. Arzola aided in Walker's recovery by providing him with essential documents like his photo ID and birth certificate, which helped him rebuild his life and self-worth and achieve sobriety. He resides at the LA Mission today, sharing God's grace in daily encounters and running with the Skid Row Running Club.

We Are Hope

COMMUNITY AND COMPASSION AT THE HEART OF ASSOCIATE GIVING

We Are Hope, the annual Adventist Health White Memorial associates giving campaign, brought a season of renewed commitment and community spirit in 2023. It returned to full strength with in-person events, a first since COVID-19.

The significance of associates investing back into our mission is incredibly powerful. It bolsters hospital resources and reinforces the collective resolve to serve patients and their families better. It also reflects a commitment beyond day-to-day responsibilities, demonstrating to the community that we are deeply invested in the well-being and health of those we serve.

The campaign soared past its giving goal, shattering the target with 163 associate gifts — a 36% increase in participation from last year and totaling over $100,000 at the end of the year. This remarkable achievement underscores our associates' deep-seated generosity, with 98 new and 65 returning donors increasing their contributions.

Associate campaign ambassadors infused life into the campaign by sharing their personal stories of why they give, inspiring a wave of generosity among their peers.

The tabling events and unit rounding through the hospital campus were also a highlight, significantly strengthening the philanthropic culture of Adventist Health White Memorial and even prompting patients to give.

GALA 2023

The Adventist Health White Memorial Gala 2023 was held on Oct. 29 at the historic Vibiana. Attendees included Adventist Health White Memorial leadership, elected officials, business leaders and community residents, all celebrating the theme “TOGETHER INSPIRED. WE CAN SAVE LIVES,” a call to action that highlighted the event’s goals to raise funds for the cancer center and honor the commitment of community partners.

Gala co-chairs Gina Orozco, Vice President of Gas Engineering and System Integrity at Southern California Gas Co., and Elizabeth Martinez, Vice President of Business Development at Meruelo Enterprises Inc., curated an atmosphere where optimism was felt and seen. The ambiance, enhanced by the flutter of butterflies symbolizing hope, beautifully echoed the event’s theme.

GALA HONORS

Oscar De La Hoya’s Lifetime Achievement Award speaks volumes about his philanthropic legacy. He is a supporter and a creator, establishing the Cecilia Gonzalez De La Hoya Cancer Center in honor of his late mother and other Adventist Health White Memorial healthcare units that have saved countless lives.

Bank of America, our Community Partner of the Year, has been instrumental in nurturing the next generation of medical professionals. Their sustained commitment over three decades has ignited the medical career ambitions of more than 2,000 young people from our neighborhoods.

Our Person of the Year, Javier Angulo, Senior Director of Community Relations at Walmart and immediate past board chair, exemplifies advocacy and unity. Adventist Health White Memorial has thrived with Angulo’s philanthropic support and his calm leadership, guiding us through adversity and trailblazing a path forward.

GALA FUND A NEED – CECILIA GONZALEZ DE LA HOYA CANCER CENTER

The Gala Fund-A-Need raised over $800,000 to support and enhance the lifesaving resources of the Cecilia Gonzalez De La Hoya Cancer Center. Investments in cancer care are critical, enabling us to offer cutting-edge treatments and compassionate support to those in need, ensuring our community’s health and resilience. Every gift received was a testament to the compassion that thrives within our community.

Our deepest thanks go to every sponsor, donor and volunteer for your support.

2023 GOLF CLASSIC

The 2023 Golf Classic was held on May 1 at the Porter Valley Country Club. Co-chaired by board members Sean King of PepsiCo and Frank Robinson of U.S. Bank, the event supported the Cecilia Gonzalez De La Hoya Cancer Center.

Golfers Henry Casas, Joe Angel Zamora, Angel Sotelo and Kevin Periman showcased exceptional skill, with their team clinching the low gross award. Not to be outdone, Jeanette Fahey, Bob Cogley, Tom Fahey and Mark Steel claimed low net honors with a remarkable -17 (53) team score.

The day ended on an emotional high note when Mr. Johnny Chavez, a local East LA cancer survivor, shared his heartfelt story of the life-saving, compassionate cancer treatment he received at the Cecilia Gonzalez De La Hoya Cancer Center. He reminded everyone of the hope and healing their charitable giving brings to the real people in our community.

Our deepest gratitude goes to the golfers, sponsors, donors and volunteers whose dedication embodies the spirit of community and compassion at Adventist Health White Memorial and the Cecilia Gonzalez De La Hoya Cancer Center.

The Healthcare Workforce Development Program, established in 2006 through a $1 million grant from Bank of America, tackles the challenges of low educational attainment, limited English-language proficiency and high unemployment in the primarily Hispanic-Latino communities of East Los Angeles, Boyle Heights and Montebello.

The program offers high school and college students, ages 15 to 25, hands-on hospital work experiences and workforce skills such as resume-building, interview preparation and financial literacy. It also creates a rich pipeline of diverse healthcare professionals to begin their careers at Adventist Health White Memorial.

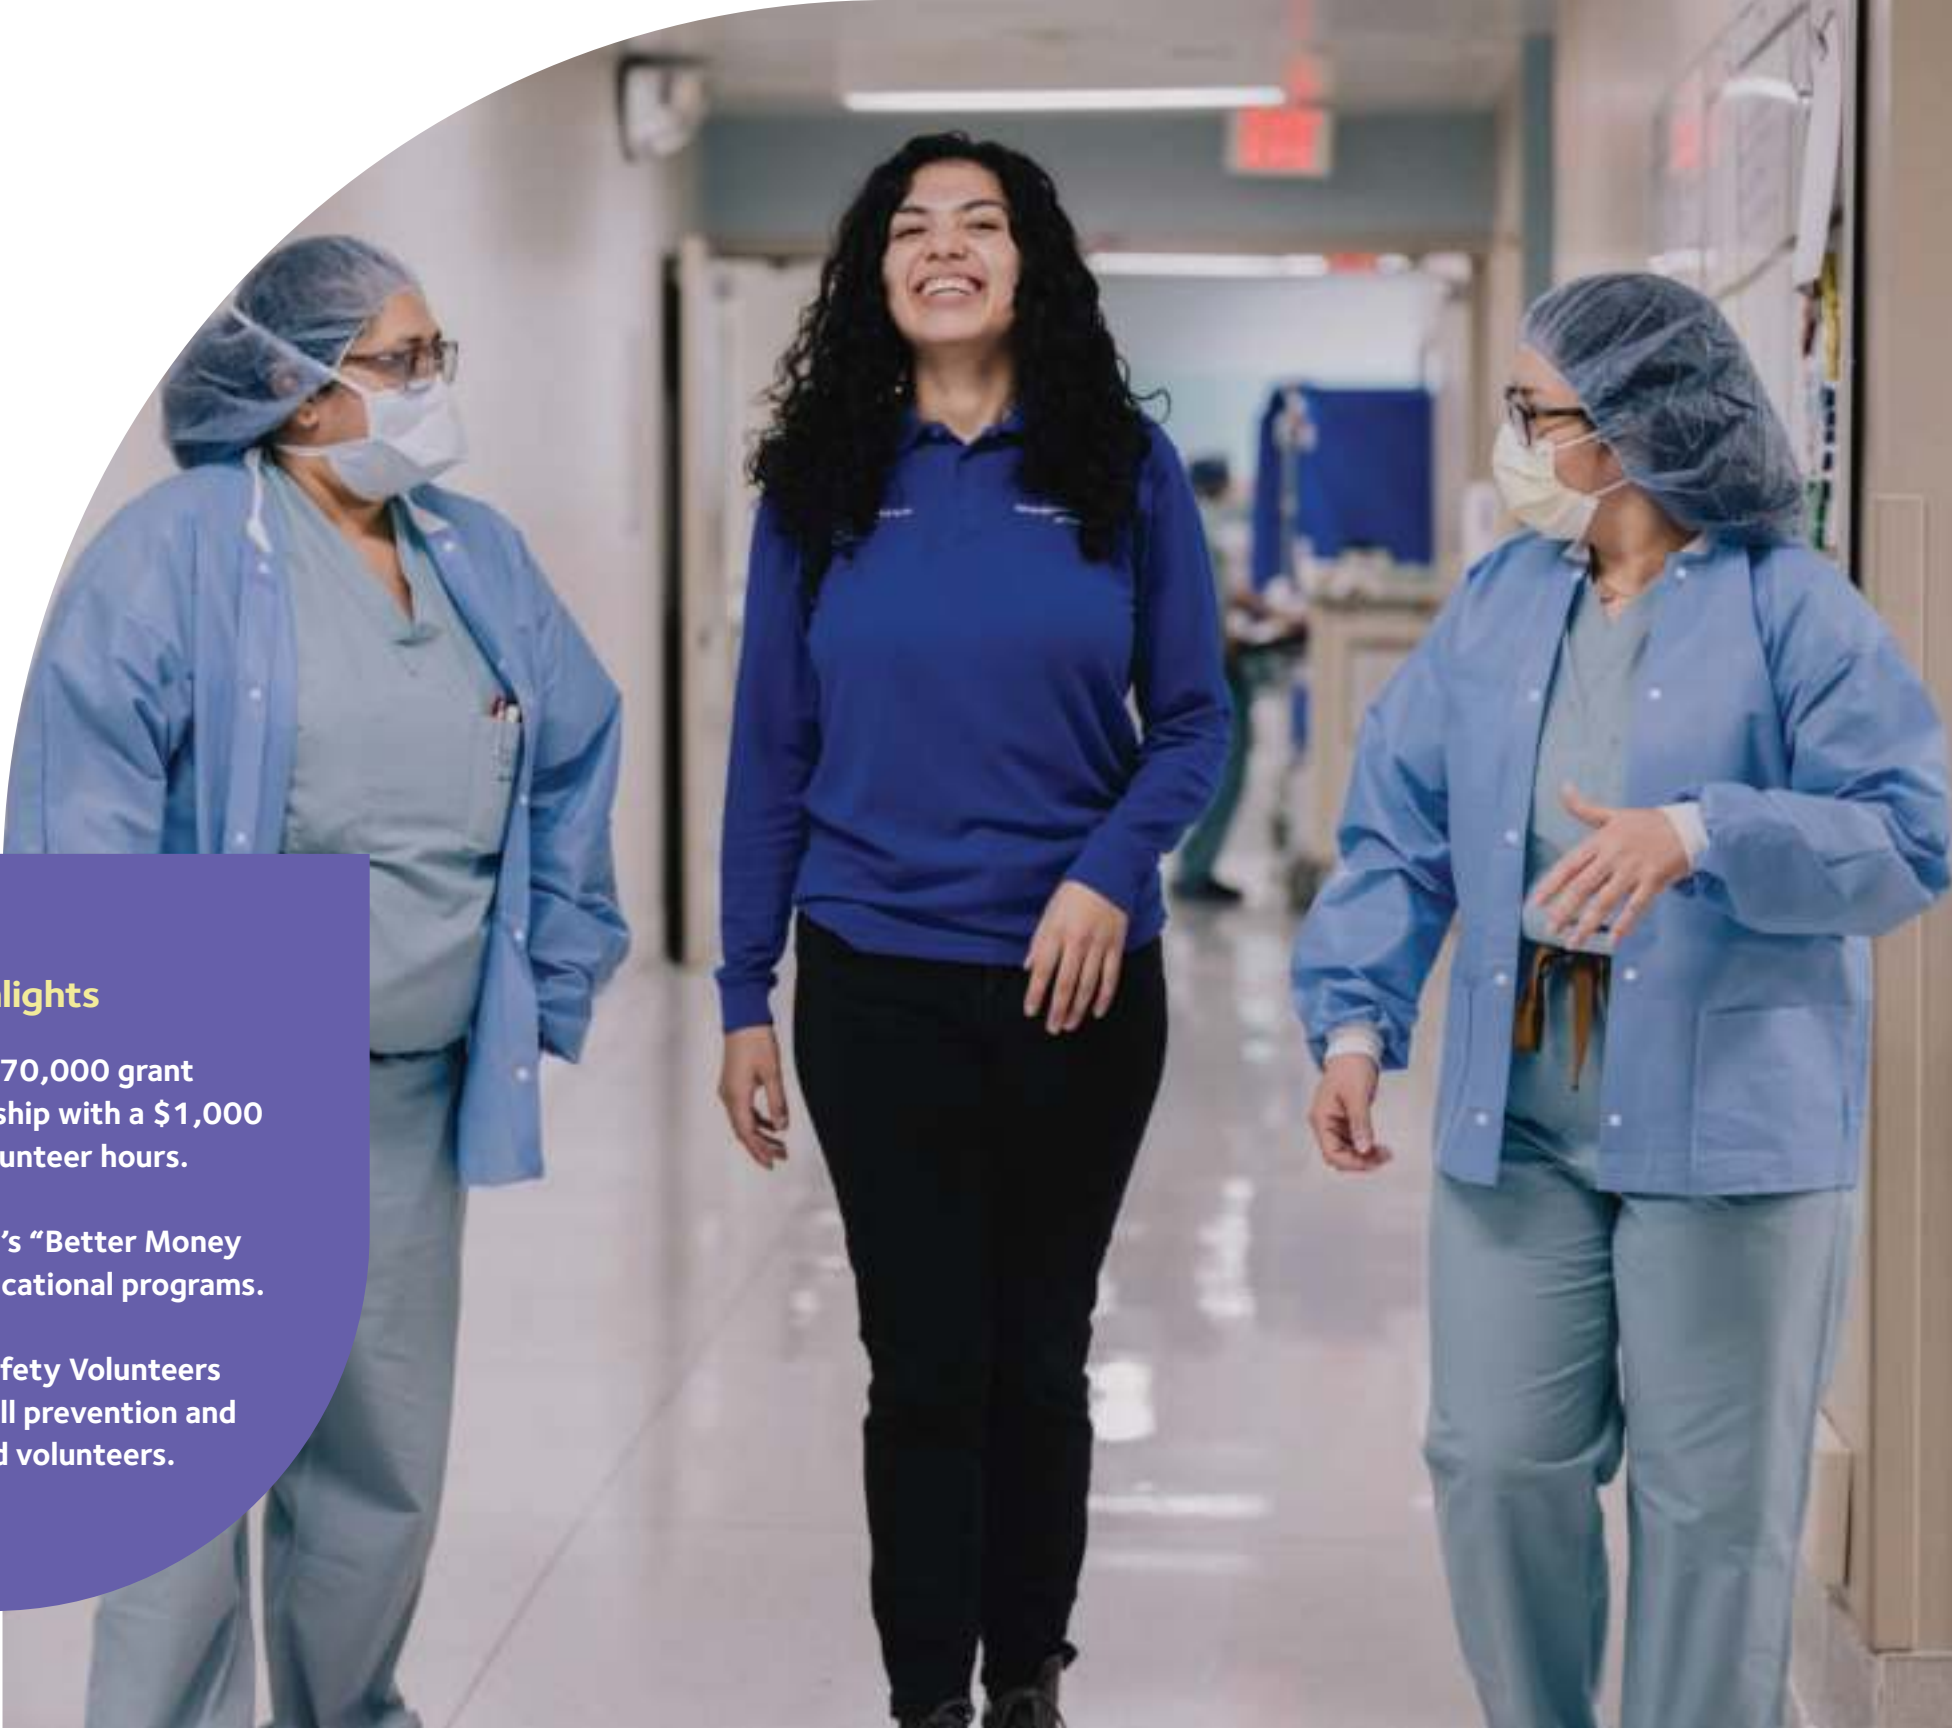

With Bank of America's consistent support, now totaling more than $2 million, and additional assistance from Banc of California, City National Bank, Union Bank, Mechanics Bank, BMO and Wells Fargo, the program has aided over 2,000 young people. Consequently, 80% of the program participants have obtained jobs in healthcare.

2023 Highlights

Bank of America's $70,000 grant established a paid internship with a $1,000 stipend for 100 volunteer hours.

Added Bank of America's "Better Money Habits" workshop to educational programs.

Launched a Patient Safety Volunteers initiative to enhance fall prevention and safety with trained volunteers.

Karen Melendez Story:

Karen Melendez, 24, a Healthcare Workforce Development Program Volunteer since August 2022 and a senior at California State University, Northridge (CSUN), dreams of becoming a forensic pathologist.

Anticipating her future, Melendez decided to get her phlebotomy license in June, hoping to secure a job after she graduates from CSUN in spring 2024 and gain a year of practical experience before starting medical school in 2025. The phlebotomy course, with a fee of $2,000, was more than Melendez could afford, forcing her to take out a loan. This move, while strategic, meant that once her loan payments began in a few short months, she would be forced to give up her volunteer work for a paying job, which would hurt her medical school application.

Knowing her situation, Healthcare Workforce Development Program Manager Alicia Román encouraged Melendez to apply to the new paid stipend internship funded by Bank of America. Melendez was selected as an intern, and she could now offset her loan costs with the stipend, keeping her medical career dream alive.

 Karen strides purposefully onto the surgical floor, where she receives mentorship and education learning about surgery.

YANIRA HURTADO

A Patient's Mission to Help

The air was tense in Dr. Faisal Khan's office on Oct. 19, 2021, as Yanira Hurtado and her husband Joaquin awaited her biopsy results. Khan entered and pulled his stool close. He looked at Hurtado, shook his head, and said, "Yanira, it's cancer." The weight of his words matched the gravity in his eyes.

Hurtado was diagnosed with stage three invasive lobular carcinoma. She had always prioritized her breast health and diligently undergone mammograms after developing benign cysts that required surgical drainage. However, this cancer was notorious for its branching pattern growth that often escapes early detection. With resolve and without delay, Hurtado opted for a mastectomy, determined to confront the disease head-on.

Moments before her surgery on Nov. 4, in a rare moment of vulnerability, Hurtado conveyed her fears to Khan. "Can you please leave it nice? Don't leave me butchered up." Leaning in close, Khan responded with gentleness, "I know what you mean. I got you."

Post-mastectomy, Hurtado began an intensive six-month chemotherapy protocol at the Cecilia Gonzalez De La Hoya Cancer Center, followed by 36 consecutive radiation treatments. Her oncologist, Dr. Arati Chand, and the cancer center's staff provided comprehensive medical care, secured financial assistance and gave her the emotional support she needed to fight this battle. "The cancer center became my second home," Hurtado reflects with gratitude. "Josie was like my mom."

Hurtado formed a special bond with her care team, radiation oncology therapists, Jaime Jimenez and Aurie Francisco, and infusion nurse, Josephine Cabisag. One day, as her treatments neared completion in August 2022, the emotional burden and trauma from cancer treatment overwhelmed her, and she broke down in tears before her session. Jamie and Aurie huddled around her and cried with her. As they dried their eyes, Hurtado confided, "I needed that." Although her husband was her primary source of emotional support, on that day, Aurie and Jaime helped to ease the accumulated stress from her cancer journey.

Feeling better, Hurtado lay on the radiation table to begin treatment, and Aurie played one of her favorite gospel songs, "It Is the Name of Jesus." With tears streaming down her face again, Hurtado looked up at the picture of a tropical beach affixed to the radiation room ceiling, whispering a silent prayer for strength and the future chance to take her family to Hawaii.

Finally, on Sep. 19, 2022, Hurtado received the news she had longed for — she was in remission. This experience transformed her into a vocal advocate for breast cancer awareness. She raises funds for Chavelyta's Pink Hood, an organization committed to creating a supportive network for individuals and families navigating the challenges of cancer. To provide further support, she established Pink Bloom, a nonprofit organization to help cancer patients. She wears a streak of purple and pink in her hair, a reminder that although she had no choice in losing her hair during treatment, she now has the power to choose her appearance. And this past June, her dream was realized as she stood with her family on the balcony of their Hawaiian hotel room, gazing out at a view she prayed to see.

"This cancer diagnosis will not go in vain," Hurtado said. "Some women don't want to talk about it, very private. But as long as I'm alive, my mission is to help in every way I can."

Providing Compassionate Cancer Care

UNDERSTANDING THE PATIENT EXPERIENCE

Daniel H Kim, MD, found his life's calling in the quiet of a microbiology lab at the University of California, Berkeley. "I was a biochemistry and molecular biology major working in a microbiology lab with vials of yeast and bacteria, and my only human interactions were my lab mates," Kim recalls. "That's not what I could envision for my career. So I explored medicine."

Today, Kim leads as the Medical Director of the Cecilia Gonzalez De La Hoya Cancer Center at Adventist Health White Memorial. He joined the team in November 2022, bringing a wealth of experience from his previous roles as Assistant Clinical Professor in Radiation Oncology and Medical Director at City of Hope – Arcadia Radiation Oncology. His patient care philosophy is rooted in empathy and a dedication to building robust community partnerships.

Under Kim's leadership, the cancer center addresses a significant community need in East Los Angeles and Boyle Heights, areas where cancer rates are notably high. Here, the center is a treatment facility and a vital support system where patients and their families are fortified to face their cancer journey with courage.

"We're not just treating the disease, we're treating the person," Kim said. "These are all things that are important to me and that I'm seeking to take us to that next level."

Looking to the future, Kim is committed to developing a medical campus that not only provides comprehensive care with a team of in-house specialists but also fosters a community wellness environment. His vision includes a hub where families can enjoy the healing presence of nature while supporting their loved ones through treatment.

Kim's innovative approach at the Cecilia Gonzalez De La Hoya Cancer Center is setting a new standard for patient care in East Los Angeles, Boyle Heights and Montebello, making it a model of holistic health and community support.

Welcome Montebello!

Adventist Health White Memorial expanded its footprint with the former site of Beverly Hospital and its adjacent medical office building, now operating as Adventist Health White Memorial Montebello since September 2023. This makes Adventist Health White Memorial the largest hospital in Adventist Health, with a total of 545 licensed beds, and two practicing sites.

Our commitment to providing high-quality, culturally aligned care continues as we expand to Montebello and surrounding communities.

We look forward to sharing our journey with you this year.

THANK YOU!

FOR YOUR SUPPORT OF ADVENTIST HEALTH
WHITE MEMORIAL

Find out how you can make a difference and support access to quality care for all in our community in and around East Los Angeles, Boyle Heights and Montebello.
